Same-Day ACH: From Concept to Reality - Opportunities and Challenges

Intermediate Level (1.2 AAP Credits)

Implementation of a same-day ACH processing and settlement service has been discussed and debated for several years within the ACH network. The Federal Reserve ACH System is poised to make this concept a reality through implementation of a same-day ACH processing cycle in the second quarter of 2010. Extensive research indicates that while the time may be right for same-day ACH payments, a number of important considerations and impacts remain undefined. This thought-provoking session will provide insights from the Federal Reserve Product Development Office on the benefits and barriers to settling ACH payments in a current day environment and identifying and clarifying issues and impacts of a faster ACH payments process. Plan to join us for what promises to be a very interesting discussion on an issue that will have significant impact on the ACH industry going forward.

Your Instructor

Steven Cordray is a project manager with the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta and has been with the Bank for five years. Since 2007, he has served as a project manager in the Federal Reserve Retail Payments Office. In this capacity, he develops new FedACH products and services. Steven's most recent work is the development of a same-day ACH processing and settlement service.

ONE FEE DOES IT ALL!

One site fee can educate your entire department. Each site registration provides you with access to the teleseminar on a single telephone line and one (1) set of handouts. There is no limit to the number of people who may listen in and participate on that line. If you plan to have people participating from multiple locations on different telephone lines, a separate registration form must be submitted and a separate registration fee must be paid for each line used.
