WesPay Announces Selection of Participant in Emerging Leaders in Payments Program at the 2018 Payments Symposium

SCOTTSDALE, Arizona– September 14, 2018: Earlier today, WesPay announced Jenice Wilkinson, Greater Nevada Credit Union, Fallon, Nevada, was selected as our newest participant in the Emerging Leaders in Payments Program (ELP).

The ELP Program was launched as an association initiative to develop the next generation of payments leaders. WesPay encouraged individual applicants from member financial institutions who are dedicated to a career in advancing quality in U.S. payments systems. Candidates were required to have the support of their organization, and all applications were evaluated by WesPay’s Member Advisory Council, a volunteer group that guides select association activities.

WesPay is dedicated to shaping the future of payments, and there is no better way for the association to accomplish that vision than investing in our future payments leaders,” said Tom Genessy, Chair of the WesPay Board of Directors and Executive Vice President of Service Operations, Security, and Technology at Golden 1 Credit Union. “We are enthusiastic about the program and the selection of Jenice Wilkinson as she embarks upon the program.”

The year-long program integrates personal mentorship, payments education and training, and development of leadership skills. The custom-built program will include payments, professional and practical development for each individual throughout the year. The program's timing coincides with WesPay's annual Payments Symposium.

First Emerging Leader Graduates - At this year's Payments Symposium, Melissa Kuntz will graduate from the program. She has spent the past year enhancing her payments and leadership knowledge. "I've learned a lot of new information this past year and enjoyed working with the staff at WesPay. I wish the next candidate as much success as I have had," said Melissa.
